The member Francesco Carbone puts in disposal of other members and their families an apartment in the centre of Porto Empedocle (Agrigento). The apartment is composed of : a fully furnished kitchen dotated with all the accessories, an air-conditioned double-bedded room, a two single-bedded room, a bathroom with shower and washing machine, and a living room. The house has all the comforts. All the rooms have a TV, ceiling fans and air conditioner. It's situated close to the famous (That means: "Turkish stairs"). It's a white limestone cliff situated along the sea coast and with the sea's reflection it recalls the tropical African sceneries. According to the ancient legend, the Saracen pirates moored their ships in the protected waters of the "Scala" (Stairs) then climbed up the gorges and creeks of the cliff until they reached the top of it and raided all the goods of the villages in the surrounding area.
